	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> The Law School Admissions Council (LSAC) offers an LLM eligibility guide with some helpful resources, though in some cases Boston University may recognize different credentials. Students graduating with an LLM from Boston University School of Law must have a predictable level of competence across the range of knowledge and skills generally expected of lawyers. This allows clients, licensing and credentialing authorities, and other interested parties to rely on these competencies. The American Bar Association and state bar associations require some of these competencies; others come from widespread industry practice and expectations. In order to achieve these competencies, known as technical standards, students must enter the Boston University School of Law able to do various functions, either with or without reasonable accommodation, and must maintain these abilities throughout law school in order to graduate.
Admission Process (Deadline) and Requirements	Graduate Admissions https://www.bu.edu/law/admissions-aid/graduate-admissions/how-to-apply/ Application Deadlines – Fall 2022 All LLM and master’s degree programs are open for fall admission. On-Campus Programs International Applicants: April 15, 2022 (priority deadline) English Language Proficiency Proof of English language proficiency is not required if: (i) your native language is English; or (ii) you received your undergraduate or first law degree in a country where the language of instruction and only official language are English. For all other applicants, we must receive satisfactory proof of your English proficiency in the form of either a TOEFL (Test of English as a Foreign Language) or IELTS (International English Language Testing System) score report, submitted via the LSAC LLM Credential Assembly Service.
