Nottingham Trent University

Masters in Law (LLM) courses

Our LLM Master of Laws provides an exciting and flexible approach to postgraduate study, allowing you to build an LLM course to suit your specialist interests and requirements.

About the LLM Master of Laws

This course is ideal for those who do not wish to specialise in a particular area of law, but would rather demonstrate ability in a range of subject areas. You are given complete choice over which modules to study from our wide range of subject areas including Sports Law, Human Rights, Health Law, International Commercial Law, International Energy Law, Technology Law and Corporate Law.

Why choose this course?

- Choose to study combinations of modules from our varied range of subject areas.
- Ideal for those who want to keep their study of Law broad-based.
- Tailor your LLM to suit your career needs.
- Full-time and part-time study routes.
- Attend an International Summer School and explore Law in a European context.
- Scholarships available.
- Individual modules can be studied for Continuing Professional Development (CPD) awards. Contact us for details.
- 94.4% of our Nottingham Law School postgraduates are in work or further study within 15 months of finishing their degrees (of those available for work or study, latest Graduate Outcomes Survey 2017-18).

What you'll study

You can choose to study modules from those available across our LLM portfolio in the following subject areas:

- Sports Law
- Human Rights
- Health Law
- International Commercial Law
- International Energy Law
- Technology Law
- Corporate Law

How do I study?

The academic year for the LLM courses is split into three parts: two ten-week terms (Term One runs from the beginning of the academic year until the Christmas vacation, Term Two between Christmas and Easter) and the summer period.

Full-time students – who complete the course over one academic year – study three modules in each term and complete the dissertation over the summer.

Part-time students – who complete the course over two academic years – study three modules across Terms One and Two in each year (six in total), beginning work on researching their dissertation during the first summer period and completing it during the second.

On the full-time and part-time modes modules are taught throughout the week. Depending on your timetable you may be expected to attend on more than one day. Seminars are led by academics but will usually require you to carry out extensive guided preparatory work and will often involve short presentations or other contributions.
