SHORT DESCRIPTION

This course offers an introduction to the history and cultures of East Asia, with a particular focus on China, Japan, and the Korean Peninsula from the nineteenth century to the present. It aims to provide students with the historical and cultural background necessary to understand the major transformations that have shaped the region and its global significance today.

Throughout the course, students will explore key historical processes and events, as well as the political, social, religious, and cultural developments that have shaped East Asian societies. Particular attention will be paid to the historical connections and interactions between China, Japan, and Korea, including processes of cultural exchange, imperialism, modernization, nationalism, colonialism, revolution, and globalization. Special emphasis will be placed on material and visual culture as valuable sources for understanding the history and societies of East Asia.

CONTENTS AND STRUCTURE

TOPIC 1: Introduction. Understanding East Asia: Cultures, connections and identities

TOPIC 2: East Asia and the West: Encounters, imperialism and cultural change

TOPIC 3: From Empire to Nation: the transformation of East Asia

TOPIC 4: Japan and the making of modern East Asia

TOPIC 5: East Asia after 1945: revolution, division and globalization
